

The Daily Courant.

Tuesday, February 18. 1707.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Feb. 22.

Vienna, February 9.

TIS advis'd from Presburg, that General Staremberg with his Body of Forces has joynd those commanded by General Rabutin at Gotsch near Alba-Regalis. The Malecontents plunder'd and burnt about 100 Villages in the last Incurfion they made into Stiria; and threaten to make a new Irruption with a greater Number of Men: But 'tis hop'd the Generals Staremberg and Rabutin will hinder them. Count Straetman, who was one of the Emperour's Plenipotentiaries at the Treaty of Ryfwick, died here the 3d Instant. The same Day Count Gundaker de Staremberg married the Widow of his own Brother, after he had procur'd the Pope's Dispensation, at the Expence (as is said) of 80000 Florins in Money and a Promise to build a Church at his own Charge. The Emperor has sent Order to Count Lewenstein his Administrator in Bavaria, to exhort in his Name the Deputies of the Circles that are assembled at Hailbron, to furnish in Time their Contingent of Troops, &c. to the Army of the Empire, that the Enemy may be oppos'd vigorously; and to represent to them at the same Time, that his Imperial Majesty is hinder'd by the present State of Affairs in Italy and Hungary from sending more Troops to the Rhine; but that however he will continue on the Rhine the Regiments he has there already, which with the Troops of Wirtemberg that he has agen taken into his Service will make up his Contingent: His Imperial Majesty has signified the same thing by Letters to several Potentates, who had press'd him to redouble his Efforts on the Rhine the ensuing Campaign.

Ratisbon, Feb. 10. The Minister of the Elector of Mentz, Director of the Diet, having caus'd them to assemble extraordinarily, acquainted them with the certain Advices he had receiv'd that the Enemy in Alsace were in a readiness to march to lay siege to Landau, as soon as the Marshal de Villars should arrive from Court; and added that General Thungen had given the like Information to the 4 neighbouring Circles and to divers Princes of the Empire, yet it did not appear it had had any Effect upon them: But that however he had thought fit to call the Diet together extraordinarily, to acquit himself at least, by communicating what Intelligence he had receiv'd, and left it to them to consult what was best to be done to save the Empire from the Danger that threaten'd it. Then the Envoy of the Elector Palatine took Occasion to tell the Diet, that his Master was ready to contribute more than his Contingent of Troops, and to send them forthwith to the Upper Rhine, with 12 Pieces of Cannon for Battery, 4 Mortars, Ammunition, and Provisions necessary; and would be glad the other Members of the Empire would follow his Example: But all that the other Envoys offer'd, was, that they would send an Account to their Principals of what had pass'd, and wait their Instructions thereupon. In the mean time, the Diet have granted a Roman Month, for the revictualling of Philipsburg, and 60000 Florins are already assign'd to that Service.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated Feb. 18.

Metz, Feb. 6. Since the Beginning of this Month, above 800 Waggon's loaded with Forrage, Gunpowder and Cannon-bullets out of our Magazines, have been sent up to Strasburg. Our Garrison consisting of between 4 and 5000 Men, have receiv'd Orders to begin their March the 18th Instant for Alsace.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated Feb. 22.

Strasbourg, Feb. 11. Our Troops are all order'd to hold themselves ready to march the 26th of this Month, by which time the Marshal de Villars is expected here from Court. Forrage and Meal is sent daily to Lauterbourg and Croonweissenburg. Above 1200 Waggon's and Carriages stand ready loaded with Ammunition; but tho' the Siege of a very considerable Place is talk'd of, the wet Weather has made the Roads too deep for a Train of Artillery sufficient for any great Enterprize. The Enemy apprehending our Design may be upon Landau or Philipsburg, are providing them for Defence with all Diligence.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Feb. 22.

Frankfort, Feb. 16. They write from Strasburg the 13th, that the French continue to make extraordinary Preparations there for some great Enterprize, and that they have a considerable Number of Troops ready to march, in the Villages and Towns between Haguenau and their Lines on the Lauter: They have likewise erected at Croonweissenburg a great Magazine of Ammunition and Provisions, and give out they will open the Campaign with the Siege of Landau, before the Germans are ready to oppose them. But due Care is taken to furnish Landau and Philipsburg with whatever is necessary for their Defence: And the Lines of Buhl and Stolhoffen have Troops in them sufficient to guard them. The Deputies of the Circles assembled at Hailbron continue their Conferences, and 'tis talk'd propose to have on Foot very speedily an Army of 40000 Men. The 14th Instant the Troops of Hesse-Darmstadt that were quarter'd in and about Giefen, march'd to joyn those that are in the Lines of Stolhoffen; and some others have taken the same Route, pursuant to Orders that they receiv'd by Express.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Feb. 18.

Zolkiew, Jan. 19. The 14th Instant in the Morning, the Great General of the Army of the Crown, the Palatins of Mazovia and Lublin, and the Castellans of Volhinia arriv'd here, accompanied by a great Number of Officers. In the Afternoon they waited on the Czar, who receiv'd them with great Marks of Friendship, and thank'd them for their unanimous Resolution and the Courage they had shewn in the Battle of Kalish: They had much Discourse upon the present Conjunction of Affairs; and when they took their Leave, Prince Menzikow who had receiv'd the 4 Persons of Quality abovementioned at their alighting out of their Coach, reconducted them to it. The 15th the great General of the Army of the Crown sent some Papers to the Czar, who the same Day went to that General's Lodgings; and after a long Conference return'd hither at Night. The 16th the said General had a private Conference with his Czarish Majesty: And the 17th he set out for Lemberg, whither the Czar is gone likewise. His Czarish Majesty has sent Marshal Szeremeth to Dubna, to order the Muscovite Troops to march towards the Vistula; in order to disperse the Adherents of Sweden, and to possess himself of those Quarters the better to facilitate the Subsistence of the Army of the Crown.

Lemberg,

Lemberg, Jan. 19. The Primate and Vice-Chancellor of the Kingdom continue at Jaroslaw, but will come hither to open the great Council. Large Detachments are sent from hence towards the Vistula, under the Command of General Rhen, who is to be reinforced to 15000 Men.

Grodno, Jan. 19. Prince Wicnowski great General of Lithuania, arriv'd the 8th Instant in this City, whence he will go to confer with the Bishop of Wilna. M. Duszko, the Czar's Resident at Petersbourg, is also arriv'd here with Letters for Prince Wicnowski, containing new Assurances of the Czar's Friendship. M. Duszko has also promis'd in the Czar's Name 60000 Men of the Muscovite Army, to cover the great Duchy of Lithuania. The Bishop of Smolensco is likewise arriv'd here, with the Swordbearer of Lithuania and other Persons of Quality, to confer together about the present State of Affairs: One of them is gone to Tykoczin, to put a strong Garrison into it.

Warsaw, Jan. 29. The 26th the Czar's Universalia were brought hither, and confirm those publish'd by his Ministers, with a Promise to support us against the Swedes, and to maintain our Liberties and the Freedom of electing our King: The 27th these Universalia were publish'd here by Sound of Trumpet. We have also receiv'd other circular Letters from the Czar, by which he invites the Senators, to repair to Lemberg, to assist at the great Council to be held there. The Muscovites have order'd this City to furnish them Provisions for 10000 Men. The last Advices from Posen tell us, that the Castellain of Kiovia continues there under a Swedish Guard.

Amsterdam, Feb. 22. The freshest Advices from Poland are, that the Czar being arriv'd at Lemberg, he declar'd to the Senators, that he judg'd it for the Advantage of the Republick to transfer the Convocation to Warsaw, because that City lies more commodiously for most of the Provinces of Poland and Lithuania; and that for the Security of the Assembly he had given Order to a Body of 10000 Muscovites to take Quarters in the Neighbourhood of Warsaw. The Czar has besides offer'd to supply the Republick with 2 or 3 Millions, to assist them in their Strights, and encourage them to proceed without a Delay to the Election of a new King: To which the Primate Archbishop of Gnesna, and the principal Senators appear inclin'd. 'Tis said that of the Persons likely to be put up at such Election, the great General of the Army of the Crown has the best Interest. The Czar has already 60000 Men in Poland, and promises the Republick to augment them to 150000, most of which are already on the March.
